Dear Eskid, I was very shocked to hear of the death of Mr. P. It is not until the time comes that one appreciates that he had a real place in the affection of people (like us) who knew him for so long. I have written a letter to Mrs. P. Now you will find things difficult for a time, as I imagine, his family will judge by results, having no real appreciation of the business, and favourable results may be difficult to achieve in the present conditions. I have in mind the bad business in Denmark, as in other places, and you have the added difficulty of getting back the licence cost.

I would just like to assure you that you will get all help and co-operation possible from this end.

I am on holiday until Tuesday and it is difficult to write about serious matters on a beautiful beach in the most perfect weather.

Yours sincerely
R. Whiting

Best wishes to your wife from me all.
